AUGUST 30, 2020 VOL. 1 ISSUE 18

This Week's Pictures and Stories

Venango County High School Fall Sports Approved by All Districts

It is game on for high school sports in Venango County this fall. School boards from all four districts approved participation in athletic competitions under the PIAA health and safety guidelines. So far that means contests with no fans present. Discussion on live streaming events were had. Going hand-in-hand with the approvals was the first official practice for Franklin's new football coach — Matt Turk.

Venango Demo Derby

The stands were full of spectators as the Venango County Fairgrounds was finally able to hold a Demolition Derby Saturday as part of Motorsports Weekend. Lots of great pictures of the action on the Eight & 322 website.

The truck pull slated to kick things off on Friday night was postponed to September 5 due to weather.

Republicans Rally in Oil City

Despite indications they might be on TV during the final night of the Republican National Convention, it was a local rally only for those gathered in Oil City Thursday evening. The event drew a crowd of more than 200 people, who spilled into Seneca Street at times as they listened to local and state politicians who were present and an U.S. Representative via the telephone.

The Comedy and Beauty of Nature

Another great week of photos by Anna Applegate, author of The Nature of Things column and August's featured Artist of the Month. Check out both for humorous and inciteful photographs of outdoor life in Northwest Pennsylvania
